1949 Electoral Roll Molonglo

Molonglo Settlement was established in 1921/1922. The barracks of the Mologlo Internment Camp built in 1918 were converted into 120 cottages and accommodation for 150 single tradesmen. In 1927 the cottages were separated into single dwellings and painted green. The settlement was self-contained with its own bakery, store, and lock-up gaol. Sergeant Cook, the second police sergeant in the territory lived at Molonglo until the lock-up and house was transferred to Acton. From the 1940s the buildings were sold and removed as people were found accommodation in Canberra or left the district. Molonglo today is called Fyshwick and Fyshwick is called Pialligo. There is some confusion during the changeover period and all three suburbs should be checked.
