AE Bruce was the second Superintendent of Parks & Gardens in Canberra and responsible from 1927 when he took over from Thomas Weston for plantings in Canberra including the Rose Garden at Parliament House. Jessie Gibbs (nee Bruce) wrote a story about her family. It was published in True Tales From Canberra's Vanished Suburbs of Westlake, Westridge and Acton. Part of her story is as follows: Alexander Dickson Esson Bruce was born on 8th February 1884 at Arbuthnott, Kincardineshire, Scotland, fifth son of William and Martha Bruce, farmers of Kincardineshire Scotland. Dad became the second Superintendent of Parks and Gardens in Canberra and was responsible for much of the early street plantings in the city as well as the rose gardens in front of the Provisional Parliament House...In 1910 Alexander Bruce arrived in Western Australia where he worked at several jobs including coal mining. He returned to Scotland to persuade his wife Catherine to return with him to Australia. She agreed and with their children, David and Robert left Scotland and arrived in Perth on 29th July, 1912. They settled in Collie WA where Alexander worked at a Co-operative mine. His next position was at Hamel where two more sons, William and Douglas were born. He was employed as an assistant to the State Nursery in Hamel and his next move in 1919 was to Freemantle where he took up the position the Curator of Parks and Gardens with the Freemantle Municipal Council. The youngest and only girl, Jessie was born here. The next move was to

Subiaco where Alexander took up the position of Park Superintendent and it was while he was here that he applied for the Canberra job. The family arrived in Canberra in May, 1927 in time to attend and view the official opening of Parliament on the 9th...The family spent the first two to three nights in the Hotel Canberra before moving to a cottage in Torrens Street in Braddon. This house was far too small and shortly afterwards they moved into an Acton Cottage usually kept for a bank manager. When Mr Weston retired and moved from Acton the Bruce family moved across the road into Weston's former house...In July 1932 he was admitted into the Commonwealth Public Service and in 1935 he was awarded the MBE for his work which was the responsibility for preparations of planting schemes, selection of trees and shrubs and the planting of the city area...

SPRINGBANK ACTON This house site of this property is now Springbank Island

KAYE, Clara, Edith, Kate, Letitia, Charles, Frederick & Joseph clerk, hd, hd, hd, dairy farmer, milk vendor & --- True Tales From Canberra's Vanished Suburbs of Westlake, Westridge and Acton contains the story of the Kaye family of Springbank. The family lived at Springbank in the 1840s then moved to Emsall Inn and back to Klensendorff's Farm House from 1854 to 1924 and then back to Springbank where they remained until forced to move because of the encroaching needs of the city and the lake. Part of the story written by Geoff Kaye. He relied in parts on the family history written by Margaret (nee Stirling) Kaye. Part of the narrative is as follows: Joseph Kaye, a woolclasser, was born in 1809 at Mi rfield Yorkshire. In 1832 at the age of 23 years he migrated to Australia aboard the brig Sarah... Gordon Kaye's obituary published in The Canberra Times - One of nature's true gentlemen and a proud Canberra

Acton & Ainslie Electoral Rolls 1935

farmer. Frederick Gordon Kaye's death on December 17 marked the end of an era in the history of Canberra. A third generation farmer, Gordon Kaye was born on Klensendorlffe's Farm (near the present site of the Albert Hall) on October 1 1910, just three months before the Federal Capital Territory was established. He attended the Naming Ceremony in 1913 and the opening of both Parliament Houses in 1927 and 1988. Canberra was his home and he loved it. He was a true Canberran and proud that, as a farmer, he was carrying on a tradition established by his grandfather, Joseph and continued by his father, Samuel Charles also born on Klensendorlffe Farm. Gordon's grandfather, Joseph, the first Kaye in the district, arrived in Queanbeyan in the 1830s. After some years there in business which included establishing the town's first licensed inn in 1838 in partnership with William Hunt, Joseph took up farming in Canberra in 1844 at Springbank. In the 1850s he went back to Queanbeyan but about two years later returned to Klensendorlffe Farm which originally included the sites of both Parliament Houses. Samuel Charles was born in 1861 and took over the farm when Joseph retired to Queanbeyan. In 1924 the Kayes moved back to Springbank and after Samuel's death in 1933 his widow and a number of his children carried on the farm. Gordon was one of those and he, two brothers and a sister were still farming at Springbank when the development of Lake Burley Griffin forced their retirement. The present Springbank Island was the site of the homestead...Gordon is survived by his widow Betty, sons, Ted (Darwin), Alan (England), daughter Lorraine (Canberra) and eight grandchildren... A number of Kaye family are buried at Woden Cemetery. They may be from other families - Elle Endora Mary died 21st June, 1977 Anglican D 092; John buried 18th January 1946 Anglican D 092; Frederick Gordon died 17th December 1997 Baptist C 016; George buried 27th June 1953 Anglican 171; Mabel Lavinia buried 7th May 1966 Anglican D 172; John buried in Ex-Servicemen's Section 8th August, 1948; Monica E died 30th August 1976 Anglican H 259; Gungahlin Cemetery - Hazel Kathleen died 5th October 1980 and Frank Sandford Kaye died 19th June, 1985 - both buried in same grave at Gungahlin.

Joseph Arthur Kaye of Arthur Circle Forrest paid for the grave of Judith Seymour (spelling of latter name not clear - writing bad) who died in 1956 or 1957 aged 68 years. She lived at Springbank.

CARNALL, Iris & Edwin hd & clerk Voices of Old Ainslie Collected and edited by Louis Lyon - Iris Carnall told her story. Details give the following information. Iris Sophia Wilden was born in Blundell's Cottage on 5th October, 1900. She was the third child. The other children were May, Ruby, Albert and Alma. Her father was Arthur Wilden who was born in Stood England and came to Australia aged 12 and Canberra district aged 16 in about 1890. He married Celia Tong who was born on 27th February 1871 at Lanyon. Iris remembered her mother telling her stories about Aborigines. When Mum was a little girl she remembered them having corroborees in Corroboree Park in Ainslie. There is a very special tree near the barbecues in the park, which has four trees growing from its centre. Mum said the Aborigines used to sit around that tree and the tribal elder would sit in the centre... From 1917 until 1913 we lived at Mugga Mugga. On all the maps at that time Mugga Mugga was known as Wilden's Farm... Keith Carnall and Iris married at Christchurch in Queanbeyan on 3rd December 1919. The couple had five children, Doreen, Gwen, Edwin, Edna and Alan.
