

Eastlake later renamed Kingston.

The first permanent cottages erected in the area were opposite the Power House (1921-1922) and were usually referred to as The Power House Cottages. Around the same time ex-Molonglo cottages were moved to a site just below St Mark's Cross on Rottenberry Hill. These were known as Eastlake Tenements. They replaced the Swagger Camp built erected in 1914 near the Power House. Also opposite the Power House was the Engineers Mess. One building was moved in 1926 to a site near the Railway Station where it was converted into the Friendly Societies Hall. This building was moved in the early 1960s to Hovea Street O'Connor where it serves the 13th Scout Troop as their hall. Behind the Power House there were four cottages. Four galvanised iron cottages were erected behind the Power House around 1916 and by 1921 only three remained. These cottages were still in use in the Post World War 2 era. District Jottings, The Community News June 11, 1927

Eastlake

The visit of the Duke and Duchess is now a matter of history, and Eastlake has resumed the even tenor of its way.

The business people have expressed themselves as well satisfied with the material results of the festive weeks, while the ordinary citizen arises in the morning, and goes to bed at night in the same regular and prosaic manner as before.

It is understood that their Highnesses were greatly impressed with the patriotic and progressive appearance of Canberra's first suburb, and the magnificent bearing of its residents.

The Duke's famous remark to the duchess that while the spirit of Eastlake burn in the hearts of the windkissed, sun-burnt Eastlakians, to Empire need have no fear - is likely to go down in history...

The absence of street lights in this suburb is being keenly felt, and severely handicaps the movements of the married residents after dark. It is becoming quite a common occurrence to fall over bridges and walk into shrubs and other objects. We are pleased to state, however, that it has the effect of bringing young people together...

EASTLAKE TENEMENTS.

These few cottages were ex-Molonglo ones moved to the site below St Mark's Cross on Rottenbury Hill near Kings Avenue Bridge. A letter in Australian Archives A6269/1 E1/28/1031 dated 28th April, 1928 describes the Eastlake Tenements in the following terms:

There are two baths and four WC's, one bath and two WC's at each end of a fair sized building. The conveniences are separated by a common laundry and a passage way. In addition to the men's section there is a urinal with flowing water.

The lavatory block is situated at least ten yards from the centre of the building and not four yards as stated. The distance may perhaps be inconvenient as in ordinary circumstances this equipment is contained inside the house.

The existing accommodation is occupied by nine families, consisting of 9 males, 11 females and 19 children. The equipment therefore works out at one in six females and one in five for males, with the children in addition. Referring to the use of baths, most of the tenants have their own baths which they use inside their own rooms...

In 1927 Harry moved from Queanbeyan and set himself up in a cafe in Giles Street...The Highgate Cafe...Harry was sent from the Greek Island of Kythera when he was a child...In 1927 he was the first Greek born resident in the Territory... Helen (nee Poulis) migrated from Athens when she was seventeen to join her uncle's family in Sydney. Harry and Helen Notaras married in 1932 and raised a family of four boys and one girl... [Helen Notaras died in November 2007.]*

The Canberra Times 3rd September, 2001. Harry Notaras holds a trio of firsts in Canberra's history. He was the first cafe owner [sic the Prowse family had a cafe in Kingston in 1926 as did Miss Arbuckle before Harry Notaras's business opened at Kingston] establishing his business, the Highgate Cafe in Kingston three months before the opening of Parliament House in 1927. He was the first Greek resident founding a family dynasty which remains active in the affairs of the National Capital. And he was the first private sector entrepreneur. During the Parliament House ceremonies he opened a pie stall [Sheekey of Yass supplied the soft drinks at the opening]...Notaras first came to Australia as a youth in 1908. He returned to his homeland to fight in World War 1, then settled initially in Queanbeyan where he worked in a cafe and formed the idea of opening a business of his own in Canberra. He died in 1971.

Past Images, Present Voices by Val Emerton is a book that contains stories by people who lived at Kingston. SO (Stan) Taylor came to Kingston in January 1926 to take advantage of the new opportunities offered by the building of Kingston shopping centre. His shop, a "Ladies and Gents Outfitters" which he started in Queanbeyan was one of the first to commence trading in Kingston. When the Taylors moved to Kingston there were only five shops in Giles Street and two or three in Kennedy Street, including the general store of Hayes and Russell. JB Young's was trading in a small portion of their well-known store and next to Young's were the shops that became Dunne's newsagency and barbershop and Taylors...The Taylors lived in the back of their shop until 1929 when Stan bought a house on the corner of Giles and Tench Streets...

In the next grave is buried Thomas Henry Trevillian. He was buried on 13th November 1962. Past Images, Present Voices by Val Emerton is a book that contains stories by people who lived at Kingston. Son Harry wrote the family story. He came to Canberra three years after his father was appointed as Shift Engineer at the Power House in 1919. The family moved into one of the 1921/22 brick cottages opposite the Power House - known as the Power House cottages. There were three children born to Christina and Thomas - Harry (first name Thomas), Johny and Trevor. Harry married in 1938 to Isa Hewet. They also moved into a Power House cottage. They later moved into a cottage in Tench Street and had a family of six children. Harry and his wife later moved into a retirement village in Hughes. Part of Harry's story is as follows: I was born in 1913 in Emmaville up the North Coast where my father was managing a tin mine. From there the family moved to El Dorado in Victoria where Dad worked on an electric dredge. Then we moved to Sydney for eighteen months and later he worked at the Power House. In about 1918 or 1919 Dad finally got the job in Canberra...We lived at Queanbeyan at first and then shifted to Canberra in January 1922...My younger brother Trevor was born in November 1922 and was the first baby born in those early houses...[I met Harry Trevillian in the 1990s and my memories of him are of a man whose face lit up whenever he smiled - a generous man.]

BENSON, Agnes & John hd & electrical fitter
John Benson lived at the Engineers Mess opposite the Power House. Following his marriage he moved into one of the brick cottages built opposite the Power House in 1921/1922. He was a keen photographer and worked in the Transport Section near the Power House. The photograph below was taken by Jack Benson in the early 1920s. On the left is section of the Engineers Mess and behind it is the Power House. The shadow belongs to Jack Benson. Both Jack and his wife Agnes are buried in Woden Cemetery in the Methodist Section. Agnes was buried on 16th August 1974 and John Harold on 26th May, 1979. Past Images, Present Voices by Val Emerton (nee Benson) contains her family story. It in part reads: In 1926 my mother, Agnes Prowse, came to Canberra from the family farm in Adelong NSW, to help her sister and brother-in-law in their newly opened Southern Cross Refreshment Rooms in Giles Street. Mum helped with the cooking and looked after the two young daughters, Joan and Bettye [Gunn]. They all lived at the rear of the shop. About the same time as my mother arrived here my father, Jack Benson, started work as an electrician with the Power House. He first lived at the Engineers' Mess, a group of temporary buildings situated on Wentworth Avenue at the end of Teloopa Park...The Engineers Mess was pulled down as housing grew up around the Power House and Past Images, Present Voices by Val Emerton. In the story by Doug Strong who worked at JB Young with Alex McDonald he wrote the following: One of the others working in Young's at that time was Alec McDonald, who was coming up to twenty-one. Most of the other young fellows who turned twenty-one in those days of the Depression got the sack because the basic wage went up to three pounds ten shillings. Alec was away sick, and I'd mentioned to Dad that he might get the sack when he turned twenty-one, and Dad said, "no, he won't, Young's don't do that sort of thing." And that was true. Young's always looked after their staff.

WILLIAMS, Agnes & Peter hd & business manager
The Federal Capital Pioneer April 21, 1927 has a long article with numerous photographs on JB Young's store in Eastlake. Part of this story is as follows - The Eastlake emporium employs a large staff...The manager is Mr PW Williams, who has a wide experience as store manager. He handles his staff judiciously and by the general public of the Federal City he is highly respected. He is untiring in his efforts to please, and is capably assisted by every employee. He is naturally anxious to build up a model business at Eastlake - Canberra shopping centre - second to none outside the Sydney metropolis.

For the convenience of its employees, the firm has erected four comfortable residences, formed on the garden city plan... JB Young Ltd was the first firm to buy at Kingston Shopping Centre - On December 12, 1924, the first sale of land at Canberra for residential and business purposes was held by order of the Government. Buyers from all over the Commonwealth attended. JB YOUNG, LTD, after keen competition, purchased the first block of land put up by the auctioneer. It was a centre corner block 91 feet by 145 feet and practically the pick of the blocks sold...The firm then lived up to its reputation as "THE LIVE FIRM" and has done so since. Having purchased the first block, it proceeded with the erection of commodious business premises thereon Messrs John Howie and Son of Sydney secured the contract, and exactly 12 months from the date of purchase business was opened, namely, on December 12, 1925...

FINLAY, Jessie & CC hd & medical practitioner
The first land sales were held in Canberra on Capitol Hill on 12th December, 1924. My parents (Brackenreg) spoke of very little else...My mother was very anxious to obtain a residential site at Red Hill...My mother picked the block on which No 8 Wickham Crescent now stands but my father got carried away at the auction and instead bid for six residential blocks in Wentworth Avenue Eastlake for her. She was furious! They entered into an agreement with John Deans, an early builder, who built the houses for them and sold them as they were built for about twelve hundred pounds each. Dr Clyde Finlay bought the first, AE Wright the third and WG Woodger of Woodger and Calthorpe also bought one. These were the first private enterprise residences built in Canberra...Ruth Robinson Yabbies at Acton, A Story of Canberra 1913-1927.
